To Whom It May Concern:

Hayden Turrini is a smart, personable, conscientious young woman who is seeking internship experience. I heartily recommend Hayden to you as a candidate for your intern position. I have known Hayden for six months as an Advanced Algebra student with energy and enthusiasm, a student seeking to perfect her understanding. She is a responsible, persistent, competent student. Hayden works daily to achieve educational and athletic team goals. She is a team captain for her varsity basketball team and, as such, is responsible for keeping team members connected, healthy and enjoying a very high level of team success. I see Hayden taking this team responsibility as seriously as she does her academics. She does not shirk her responsibilities nor does she play along while others fall short in their academic or team accomplishments.

As the math department chair at Windsor High School, I am all too aware of the differences between students who must attend class and students who want to attend class; Hayden is most certainly the latter. She cares, she tries, she teaches and she questions each and every day she enters my classroom. I would welcome Hayden as an intern because she exemplifies the kind of desire, drive and commitment it takes to succeed in the workplace.

Please consider Hayden for a place in your company. She will not disappoint.

Sincerely,

Shawn Rosales
